

ABSTRACT

A method of preventing substrate backside reflected components in a beam of electromagnetic radiation caused to reflect from the front thereof which involves the placing of a mask directly atop a sample, which mask allows electromagnetic radiation to access the sample over only a limited area.

10

15

20

25

30